

Appleton raises prices of its carbonless, thermal products, security products sold to international markets

(Appleton, Wis., April 13, 2010) Appleton announced today that it has notified its international customers that the company will raise prices 5% to 7% for carbonless roll and sheet products, direct thermal products and related film products, and security products sold to international markets. The increase is effective May 31, 2010. The company said the increase is needed to offset a portion of the escalation in raw materials, energy and transportation costs.
